FIRST BLOOD SHED FOR LIBERTY.

(Communicated to the Charleston Mercury.)
The first blood shed in defence of liberty and in opposing English oppression, was, in the South. The State of North Carolina—the old North State—and twin sister of South Carolina—is entitled to the honor.

It was during the gubernatorial administration of the notorious Governor Tryon, the English governor at the time, who built one of the most splendid palaces in either North or South America, at Newbern, N. C., with the proceeds of taxes imposed upon the people for the purpose, and to resist which taxation a portion of them rebelled, just as did the men of Massachusetts afterwards. It took place in the year 1771, and is narrated by Mr. Wheeler in his History of North Carolina. On the 16th of May, in that year, a battle was fought between the Americans and British forces, on the banks of the Albemarle river, in what is known as the county of that name, called the Battle of Alamo. The American forces were called the "regulators," for their efforts in endeavoring to bring about an equitable regulation of taxes and other oppressive matters. The American force amounted to two thousand, and were headed by three men named Husbands, Hunter, and Butler; while the British forces, including militia called out by Tryon, amounted to upwards of eleven hundred, but the advantage was in arms and discipline. As might have been expected, the Americans were defeated after an action of two hours, with a loss of twenty dead and several wounded, while that of the royal forces, in killed, wounded, and missing, was sixty-one. Mr. Wheeler says:

"Thus ended the battle of Alamo. Thus and here was the first blood spilled in these United States, in resistance to the English ruler and oppressors by the English government. The great Wolf of North Carolina showed his cruelty and barbarity. His hanging Captain Tye the next day, without trial, on a tree."

It was in this case, as Byron truly says in one of his poems—
For Freedom's battle once begun,
Bequeathed from bleeding sire to son,
Though sometimes lost, is ever won.

Thus we see that it was at the battle of Alamo, and not at Bunker Hill, the first American blood was shed in the cause of liberty. "Honor to whom honor is due."

THACKERAY ON AMERICAN MORALS.

The Petersburg Express quotes the following redeeming passage from Thackeray's last work:

"There lived, during the last century, a certain French Duke and Marquis, who distinguished himself in Europe, and America likewise, and has obliged posterity by leaving behind him a choice volume of memoirs, which the gentle reader is specially warned not to consult. Having performed the part of Don Juan in his own country, in ours, and in other parts of Europe, he has kindly noted down the names of many court beauties who fell victims to his powers of fascination; and very pleasant reading, no doubt, it must be for the grandsons and descendants of this fashionable personage, when they find the names of their ancestors adorning M. le Duc's sprightly pages, and their families recorded by the candid writer who caused them."

"In the course of the peregrinations of this nobleman, he visited North America, where, according to his custom in Europe, he proceeded straightway to fall in love. And curious it is to contrast the elegant refinements of European society, where, according to the maxim, he had but to lay siege to a woman in order to conquer her, with the simple lives and habits of the colonial folks, among whom this European enquirer of hearts, did not, it appears, make a single conquest. Had he done so, he would no certainly have narrated his victories in Pennsylvania and New England, as he described his successes in this and his own country. Travellers in America have cried out quite loudly against the rudeness and barbarism of these Atlantic manners; let the present writer give the humble testimony of his experience that the conversation of American gentlemen is generally modest, and to the best of his belief, the lives of the women pure."

"REVENKONS A NOS MOUTONS."

We are reminded of this familiar French proverb, by a sentence in yesterday's Enquirer, as follows: "Continually, he recurs to the infallible certainty which drove the famous French narrator back to certain specified sheep." Few of the many to whom the expression is constantly recurring in reading and conversation, we apprehend, are acquainted with its origin. In a note upon D'Urfey's translation of Rabelais, the commentator has first referred to its authorship. The proverb is derived from an old French play by Patelin where a woolen draper pleading against a shepherd concerning some sheep the latter had stolen from him, would frequently digress from the matter in issue to speak of a piece of cloth which his antagonist's attorney had robbed him of—which conduct gave the judge occasion to admonish the draper to return to his muttons—"South Side Den."

PHILADELPHIA.—A benevolent Institution, established by special endowment for the relief of the sick and distressed, afflicted with Venereal and Epidemic diseases. To all persons afflicted with Sexual Diseases, such as SPERMATORRHOEA, SEMINAL WEAKNESS, in view of the awful destruction of human life, caused by sexual diseases, and the deceptions practised upon the unfortunate victims of such diseases by quacks, several years ago directed their Consulting Surgeon, as a charitable act, worthy of their name, to open a Dispensary for the treatment of the class of diseases, all the venereal diseases, and to give Medical advice gratis, to all who apply by letter with a description of their condition, (age, occupation, habits of life, &c.) and in cases of extreme poverty, to furnish Medicines free of charge. It is needless to add that the Association commands the highest Medical skill in the country, and will furnish the most approved mode of treatment.

The Directors, on a review of the past, feel assured that their labors in this sphere of benevolent effort, have been of great benefit to the afflicted, especially to the young, and they have resolved to devote themselves, with renewed zeal, to this very important but much despised cause. Just published by the Association, a Report on Spermatorrhoea, or Seminal Weakness, by the Consulting Surgeon, which will be sent by mail, (in a sealed letter envelope) free of charge, on receipt of two stamps for postage.

The article is ground to a fine powder, and put up in strong bags, for sale at lowest rates, by JAMES C. NEVETT, No. 13.

The genuine is put up in strong Barrels with white labels, and is sold in Black letters, and the inspection brand in red letters underneath. For sale at Baltimore prices, by JAMES C. NEVETT, Agent for Feb 27 Alexandria, opposite Pioneer Mills.
